Editors' Note

This is the 18th issue for which it has been my pleasure to serve as the editor in chief of the Journal of Oral Health (JOH). I'll always try to implement more knowledge, cultivate and facilitate your learning and update the journal continuously. Previously the journal was approved by BMDC and now achieved permanent ISSN number (Print). I hope we will do much more to improve the Journal of Oral Health (JOH).

It is well known that the advancement of scientific knowledge is propagated to mass through publication. In this context, voluminous research work has been continuously enriching dental field for the past fifty years. Therefore, there is no alternative of a journal which reflects new ideas and knowledge achieved in an area that needs to be shared with others.

We hope you find much value in this issue of the JOH, which may enrich your expertise and help us give you what you need. At last I would like to thank all who took painstaking efforts to make the current issue from dream to the reality.

Informations for Authors

The JOURNAL OF ORAL HEALTH publishes articles on original research, clinical observations or investigations on recent advances and review articles on Oral Health Science and related subjects.

Manuscripts are accepted for publication with the stipulation that they are original, written in English and have not been published or submitted for publication elsewhere.

Format

The manuscript must be printed on white 8 1/2" X 11" or ISO A4 sized paper using one inch margins. Print on one side only. Use double-spacing throughout, including title page. Abstract, text, acknowledgements, references, tables and legends for illustrations, and number pages consecutively. Unless otherwise noted, manuscripts must be no longer than 12 double-spaced pages (roughly 3000 words), exclusive of title page, abstract, acknowledgements, references and illustrations (tables, figures, text boxed). A 3.4 diskette or CD-ROM must accompany the manuscript with file in Microsoft Word as well as the TIF or JPEG files, if applicable.

Manuscripts organization

The following organization is recommended

Title Page

The title page should include the title of the article, full name(s) of the author(s), academic degrees, and institutional affiliations and positions.

Abstract

Provide an abstract of 250 words or less. Briefly state the problem or purpose, the major observations, the methods, and the principal conclusions.

Introduction

The purpose of the introduction is to briefly answer the question "why did you start" or "what initiated this research?" State the study's objective.

Materials or Subject and Methods/Case Histories

This section should answer the question "what did you do". Describe the experimental design procedures and subjects used. Give the details only if the methods are original or essential for understanding, otherwise give reference.

Result

Present the result with a minimum of discussion and answer the questions "What answer did you get?" Use tables, chart and photograph to clarify the findings.

Discussion

Point out the significance of the data and the limitations. Short paragraph should answer the questions "what did you find out" and "What does it mean?" This most important second question is answered by discussing your findings in the light of other reports, including opposing views, and is important in limiting bias. Use last paragraph to suggest extensions of your study.

Conclusion

Be sure to include a clearly labeled conclusion.

References

Cite reference selectively. In the text, reference format should conform to the Vancouver style. Reference to articles in page must include authors names, title of article and name of journals. The reference list should be typed double-spaced on a separate page. Journal names must be abbreviated according to the cumulated index medicus.

Legends and illustrations

All figures must be mentioned sequentially in the text. Each figure must be accompanied by a legend. Type all of these together double-spaced on one separate sheet of paper.
